

Thu, Jan 27, 4:17 PM

FYI - I'm hearing that Minister Mendicino is coming to a view that MPs shouldn't come to Ottawa Monday. I'm not sure if that has reached you - but if it does and if you agree, then hopefully we can speak about it first

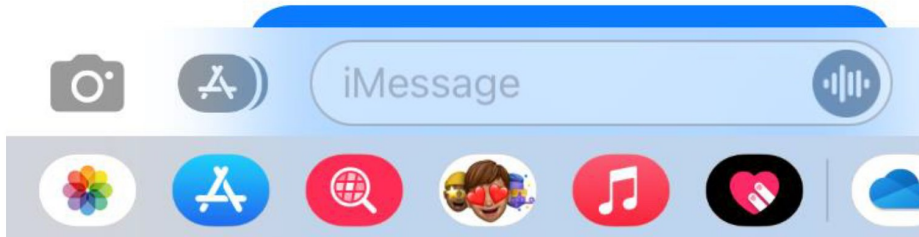

Would be fairly unprecedented to ask MPs not to go to the House ...only COVID has managed to cause that

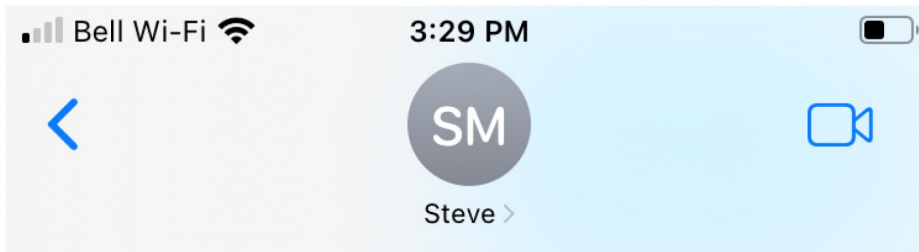

Let's speak for sure

I'm free if you call.

Now or after caucus

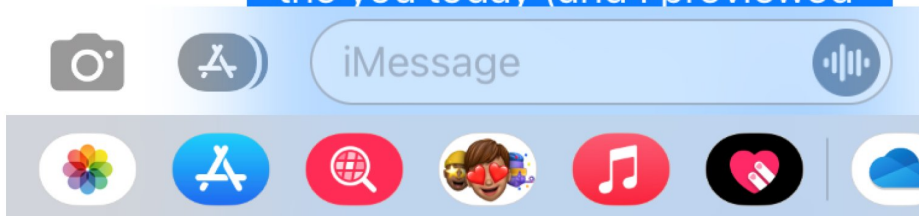

Sat, Jan 29, 2:27 PM

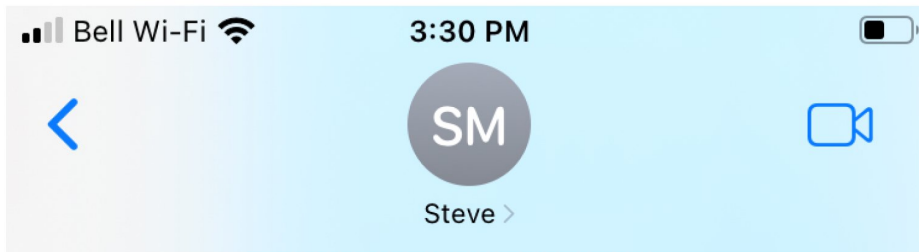

Sat, Jan 29, 2:27 PM

Just spoke to Marco for twenty minutes. He remains quite focused on not having MPs come to Ottawa Monday. I reiterated I think we need to see what things look like tomorrow. He says best case scenario tomorrow is that almost all protestors are gone but that there are still some trucks parked on Wellington and some lingering hardliners. He asks if we're really going to ask ministers, mps, and their staff to walk past the remaining protestors. I told him I think the threshold for instructing MPs not to come is very high, that we should see how things look tomorrow, and I encouraged him to speak to the you today (and I previewed start to walk past the remaining protestors. I told him I think the threshold for instructing MPs not to come is very high, that we should see how things look tomorrow, and I encouraged him to speak to the you today (and I previewed that yesterday you were of the view that MPs should be there). We both agreed we need to know more from Parliamentary security about what the plan will be for MPs on monday - specifically how they should enter the building and how will they be protected

Thanks. Happy to speak to him. My view hasn't changed based on what I'm seeing.

Nor has mine

Sat, Jan 29, 4:20 PM

We have spoken and agreed to speak again tomorrow afternoon after he gets some updates. Status quo for now.

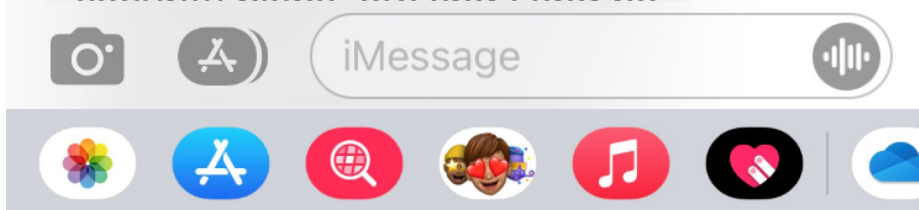

Where he and I agree is that we should each in our own way get assurances on measures in place to ensure safe access to the hill.

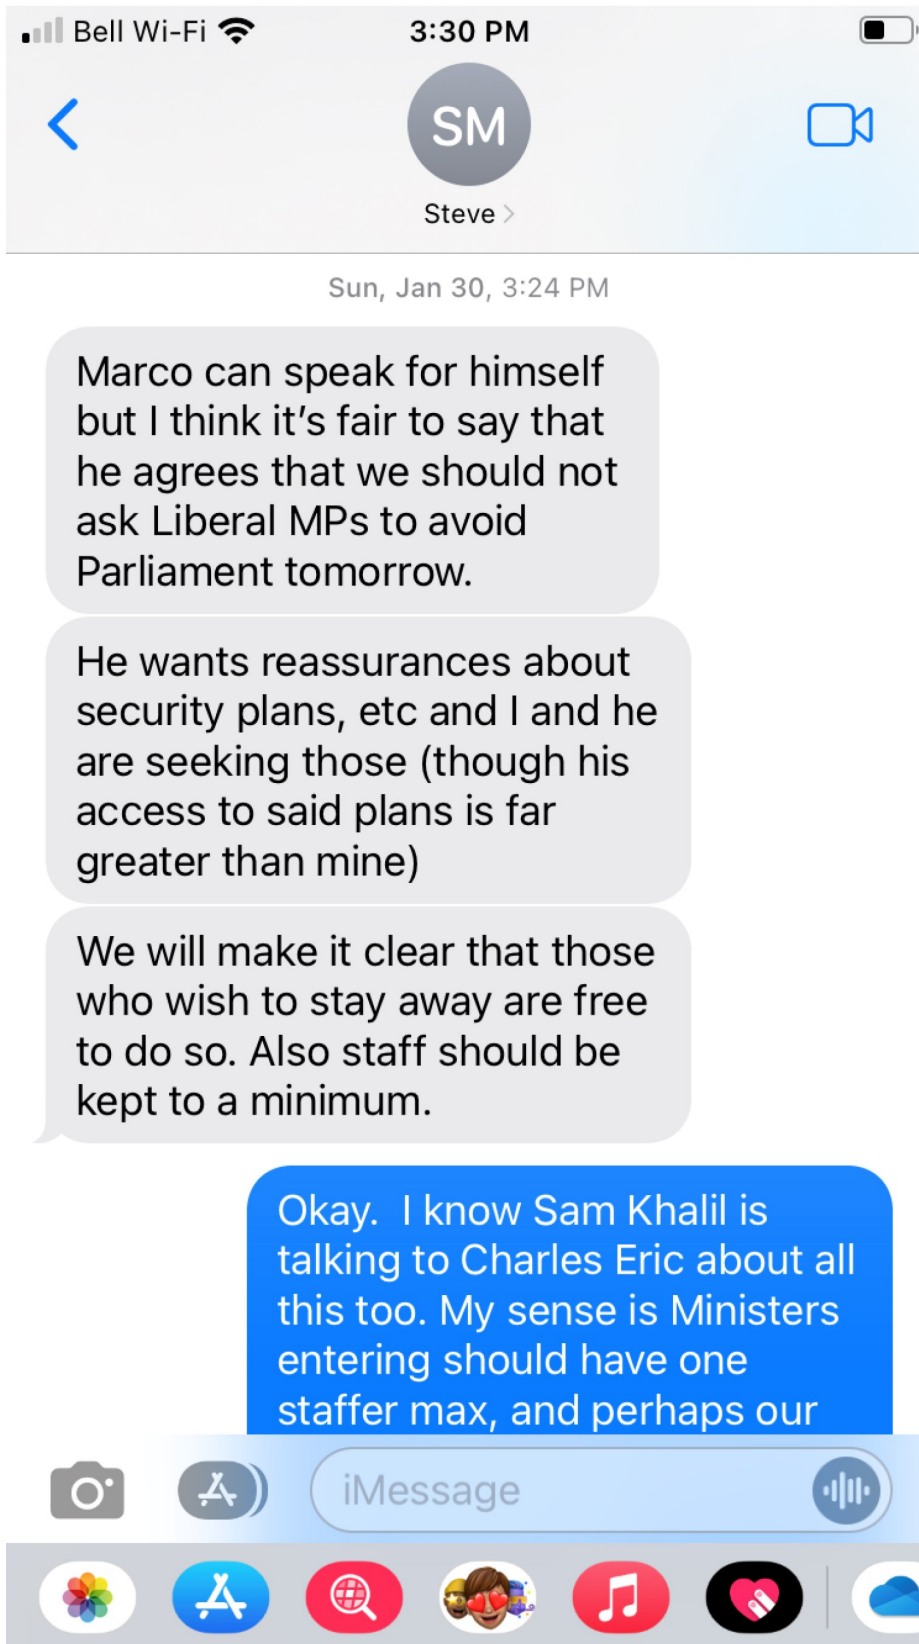

Noted

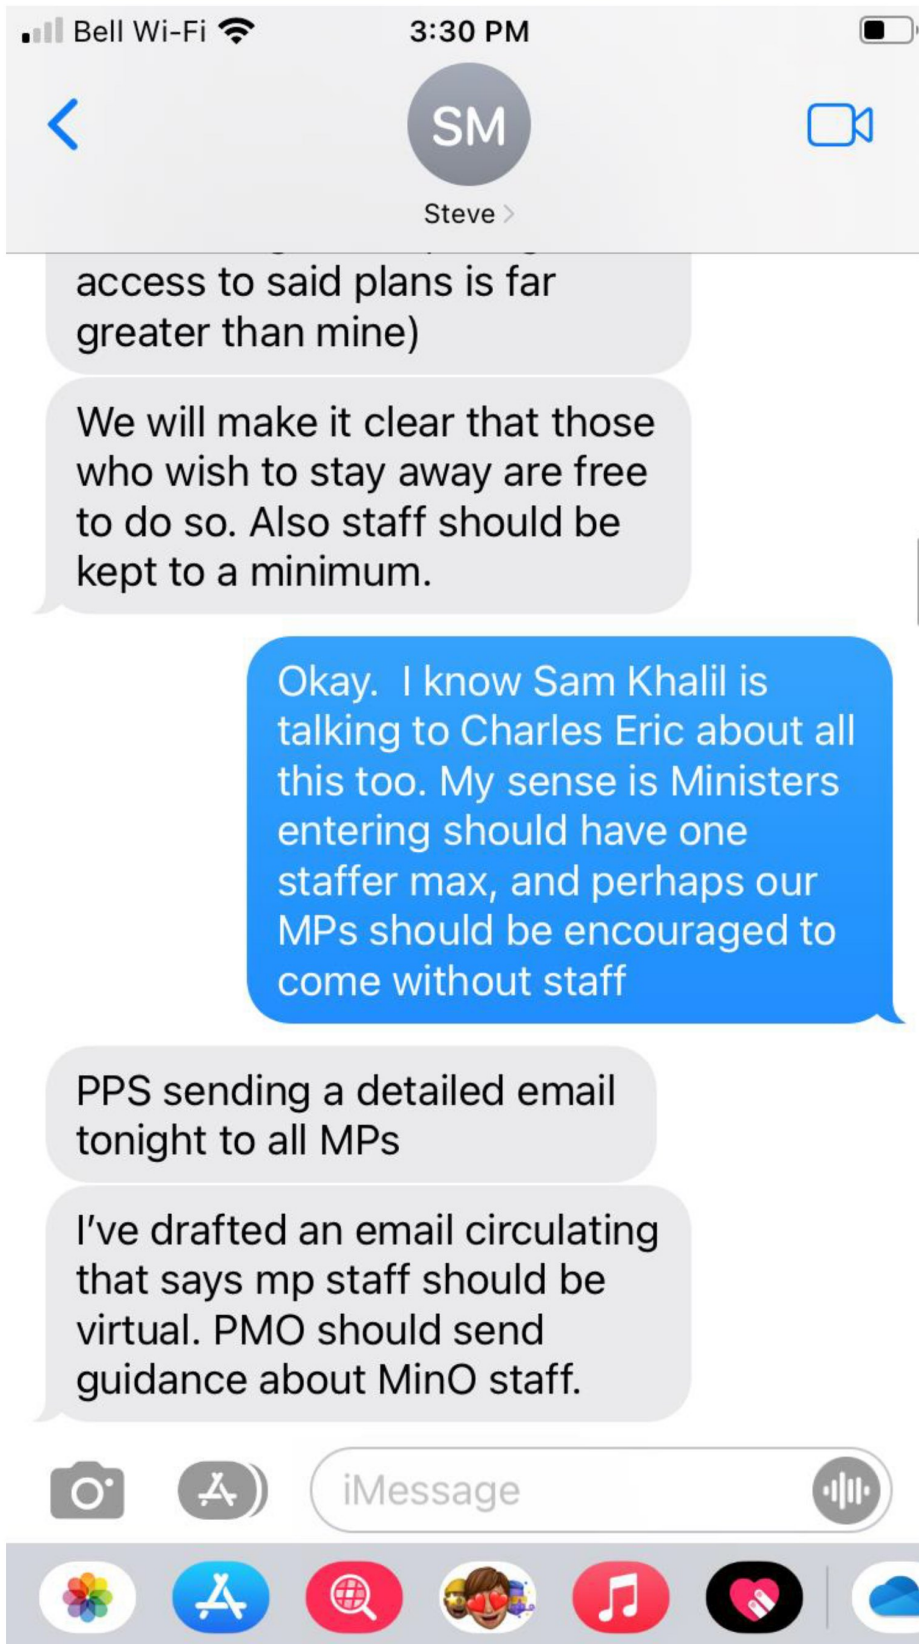

Sun, Jan 30, 3:24 PM

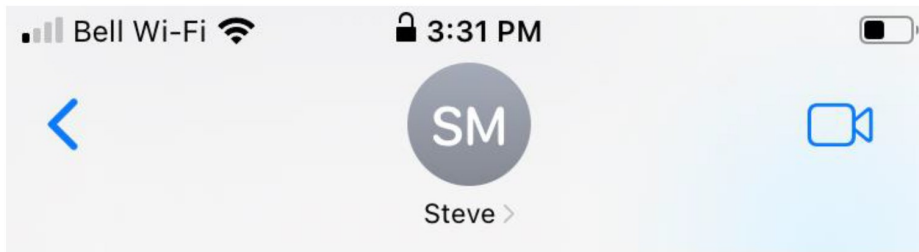

Marco can speak for himself but I think it's fair to say that he agrees that we should not ask Liberal MPs to avoid Parliament tomorrow.

He wants reassurances about security plans etc and I don't

Thu, Feb 10, 9:40 AM

As you consider things today,
my assessment is there is a
quickly growing bias for action
among our people.

Sun, Feb 13, 11:44 AM

Marco taking a savage beating at NCR caucus. The larger group is restive.

Sun, Feb 13, 1:21 PM

I don't mind that - Additional motivation to get this resolved

We also have trouble on the opposition motion tomorrow

We haven't taken a firm decision yet on how to vote - but what are you hearing on

Sun, Feb 13, 9:32 PM

Yes.

As do many others!

It does need to be voted on in parliament within 7 days. Which is not insignificant!

Where are opposition?

Honestly, not sure. We need to consult them tomorrow too along with Premiers. You may want to ask that question in the discussion

Also we need to designate NCR not just Ottawa. That I know has Qc consequences, symbolic if nothing else.

Especially bridges

